

Changing Hands (written by Douglas Wesley Haines 1975 - ©2011 – All Rights Reserved)

Well I hear you been losin a few on your own Love aint as easy or as pleasin as other times you've known

And I think you'd have been better off with me I just couldn't make you see love aint as easily done the first time through

And you wonder why the good times always die
Why you're always left alone at night to cry
We'll you have love in your plans
You think you're in command
but you can't control a heart that's changin hands

Empty though you may have felt I loved you more than I can tell I only wish to wish you well my love

Don't you open up your heart for someone else to tear apart You'll lose your love and have to start again

So don't you love another man when I'm around Don't you hold him when I'm watchin leave me feeling like a clown

And you wonder why the good times always die
Why you're always left alone at night to cry
We'll you have love in your plans
You think you're in command
but you can't control a heart that's changin hands
You can't control a heart that's changin hands
You can't control a heart that's changin hands